1       The allocation of $30,000 to the Tsai Law Company PLLC for Chapter 11 administrative 2 claims shown by the Trustee on Page 9 of the proposed order is not correct.

3       The Court has already found that fees, costs, and expenses in the amount of $62,079 (Docket
4 No. 196) were "reasonable" and therefore ordered that they be "approved" provisionally. This 5 seems to imply "provisionally" until such time that all other claims of equal priority can also be 6 paid at 100%. That time is now thus the approval is no longer provisional. The correct amount 7 already approved of $62,079 should be reflected in the claims.

1       The Tsai Law Company PLLC should be praised by the trustee.

2       Emily Tsai, more than any other person, deserves the Nobel Prize in Protecting and 3 Preserving the assets of the estate.

4       First, the trustee has complained about redacted parts of their billings but others have said that 5 their billings were slightly understated; I do not wish to waive attorney-client privilege but to the 6 extent possible, I concur with this statement made by others.
7

8       Second, Emily Tsai was the only person in the court room on November 15, 2010, who 9 correctly understood bankruptcy law and the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court when she 10 started to address the court, "I just wanted to bring to the Court's attention the issue of the 11 bankruptcy and the powers of the bankruptcy court" before being interrupted twice, resulting in 12 an error of law propagated to today that the trustee recently stated would cost an additional 13 $25,000 in litigation expenses to correct.
14

15       Third, in November, 2010, two or more people, possibly three who received financial benefit 16 paid by the same organization, agreed in advance to engage in or causing the performance of such 17 conduct that included making false statements known to be false by the speaker(s) at the time they 18 were made and omitting facts or suppressing information which, in light of the circumstances 19 under which they were made, would be necessary to make the statements not misleading, or to 20 employ a scheme or artifice or to engage in any act, practice, or course of conduct for the 21 purpose, intent, and goal of knowingly and willfully misrepresenting to people, or failing to 22 inform them, of material facts upon which they relied, directly or indirectly, in connection with 23 the purchase of sale of securities offered by the Tanager Fund LP, regulated by the SEC and filed 24 under Regulation D §504 and §505 exempt from registration but subject to the full force and 25 powers pursuant to The Act, as amended, with restrictions set forth therein including the use of

1 any means or instrumentality of interstate commerce, or of the U.S. Mail, or of electronic wires
2 across state lines, for the ultimate goal of deceiving other people, defrauding investors, and taking 3 the property belonging to one or more people. The Tsai Law Company consistently opposed this 4 defrauding of investors.

5 Fourth, Jill Borodin directly and/or through her attorney falsely represented the ownership of 6 property, assets or the equivalent value in the amounts of $255,000, $101,617, $281,619, 7 $278,000, and $255,000 (again) and $215,000 which have been cited to justify the attempted, and 8 twice successful fraudulent or unauthorized taking, of property belonging to other people, 9 companies, or assets claimed by the bankruptcy estate.

10 Fifth, this included the removal post-petition; without prior approval of the bankruptcy court;
11 absent notice, a motion, and a hearing; not while acting as debtor in possession; nor in the course 12 of business; for no present consideration; and for no future consideration, assets claimed by the 13 bankruptcy estate which have yet to be returned and for which liability to the estate for this 14 unauthorized removal potentially still exists.

15 Sixth, only due to the efforts of the Tsai Law Company PLLC, is the estate not facing a deficit
16 nearly $1m worse than it is now as the Tsai Law Firm steadfastly, and generally successfully,
17 opposed the false and fraudulent representations that have defrauded investors and overstated 18 assets in the estate.
